Buckland Court is a delightful development of 19th Century listed buildings arranged around two lawned quadrangles set in a sheltered valley in the pretty hamlet of Goveton, just 2 miles from the market town of Kingsbridge. The beautiful South Devon coastline with its spectacular cliffs, coves and beaches are just a short drive away, as are the golf courses of Thurlestone and Bigbury and the famous sailing waters of Salcombe and Dartmouth. These beautifully presented, individually designed and well equipped stone barn cottages have retained much of their original charm and character including such features as exposed ceiling timbers. Each now enjoys the benefits of double-glazing as well as gas fired central heating, wireless broadband internet access and hot water, as well a double garage with room for two cars - there is an additional parking area for visitors.
